SUMMARY

New LA is seeking passionate, well organized teachers who are interested in the middle grades and are seeking a small school environment where teacher voice is valued and leadership opportunities are available. New LA is looking for outstanding, data-driven educators with a strong foundation in the Common Core State Standards, and whose teaching beliefs and practices are rooted in anti-racist, culturally responsive pedagogy.

JOB DUTIES

- Work collaboratively with math colleagues and principal to develop a strategic plan for improving math outcomes;
- Create and execute a highly rigorous mathematics intervention program guiding students to mastery of the Common Core Content Standards at grade level;
- Collaborate well with grade level math teachers, grade level teams, resource teachers, and leadership;
- Create a nurturing and caring classroom environment for all students and implement restorative practices;
- Provide targeted instruction to small groups of students in a pull-out setting and occasional push-in setting;
- Use data to inform practice: analyze formal and informal student assessment results, and use this information to drive and inform instruction;
- Participate in social justice and community engagement activities;
- Participate in outdoor education programming, including multiple-day and overnight camping trips;
- Work well as a team player to prepare students for success in high school, college and the world beyond;
- Serve as a positive role model;
- Collaborate well with co-teachers and colleagues – in grade level teams, curriculum teams, and full faculty;
- Provide accommodations and support in accordance with IEPs and 504 plans when applicable;
- Provide scaffolds for all learners including multilingual learners through iELD and dELD;
- Demonstrate a commitment to the whole child, with concern for each student's academic and social-emotional well-being;
